A-22-005-16 Oral History Program

Description: Oral history is a method of gathering and preserving historical information through recorded interviews with participants in past events and social business organizations. It can also be said that oral history is a disciplined conversation between two people about some aspect of the past considered to be of historical significance and intentionally recorded. An oral history can reveal “the story beneath the story,” social history, memories of a specific event, or document the career of a noteworthy individual. The Department of State (DOS) Oral History Program interviews DOS employees and former employees and other officials who influence U.S. foreign policy. The interviewer gathers background information to develop interview questions and ensure that the information that the information provided by the interviewee is accurate. The interview results in the creation of audio or video recording. Transcripts are created for most interviews. Interviewees must sign a Legal Release Form and Deed of Gift agreement. These agreements may contain restrictions on the availability of audio and/or video recordings and instructions regarding how such materials may be used. Background/research materials provide the basis and foundation for conducting the interview and may be referred to by the interviewer to ensure that answers to questions are as comprehensive and accurate as possible.

A-22-008-01 State Department Public Website (www.state.gov)

Description: The state.gov website is intended to inform the American public of international relations and the work of the U.S. Department of State. It is a collection of linked electronic pages and databases including video, audio, etc. The site is managed by the Office of Electronic Information, Bureau of Public Affairs, who receives data from department bureaus and appropriate agencies multiple times a day 24/7 for publication on the website. The website contains U.S. foreign policy and information about the Department per presidential administration.

Primary customers are the general public searching for information about foreign policy and the State Department, as well as general information on foreign countries and travel/services information. Another influential external customer is the press, who relies upon state.gov for daily press briefings and all other press releases and conveys critical news to the public. Internal customers include 60 bureaus/offices that depend on Public Affairs to review and edit content, develop websites/pages, and post content.
