2 5 p.m.

DK: I am in New York tonight and I leave for Europe on Wednesday.
I will be in Israel for about a week.

K: Call me when you get back.

DK: Yes I will.

K: I am anxious to see you.

DK: I will be gone for four or five weeks. I am on a UNECEF trip.
I will go and see anybody you want me to. Anything.

K: Let me know where you will be in case I want to get you.

DK: I don't know where I will be in Israel. I will let the American Embassy know where I am.

K: Good.

DK: Do you go to collect your prize.

K: Yes. About December 10.

DK: O.K. That is about all. I was worrying about... we left you a little thing about Carol Ryder(?) and a little desk clock.

K: You were so sweet and I have not thanked you.

DK: Just wanted to know if you got it. How are things working over there?

K: The Israelis are having a much tougher time.

DK: I know that. I don't want to know about that on the phone. I know the outcome but at a great, great loss.

K: I think they will win but it is a hell of a tough fight.

DK: Congratulations. We called you the peacemaker and we were right.

K: Thank you. I would love to see you.

DK: I will be gone about 4-5 weeks and I will stop in N. Y. I would like you to come up.

K: Fine. Bye. END
